Answer: D

NEW QUESTION: 4

Contoso, Ltd. has an Exchange Server 2010 environment. Fabrikam, Inc. has an Exchange Server 2007 environment. Contoso acquires Fabrikam. Contoso plans to migrate the email accounts of the Fabrikam employees to the existing Contoso Exchange Server environment. Fabrikam employees will have new Contoso email addresses and will also maintain their existing Fabrikam email addresses for a period of time. You need to recommend a solution for ensuring that replies to email messages sent by Fabrikam employees prior to the migration are directed to the migrated mailboxes. What should you recommend?

- A. After the mailbox migration, run the Update-EmailAddressPolicy cmdlet for each email address policy.
- B. In the Exchange Management Console (EMC) in the Contoso Exchange Server environment, set the primary email address to the Fabrikam email address.
- C. Export the legacyExchangeDN attributes from the Fabrikam mailboxes and add them as custom X500 addresses on the new Contoso mailboxes.
- D. In the Exchange Management Console (EMC) in the Contoso Exchange Server environment, add the Fabrikam domain name to the Accepted Domains list as an authoritative domain.

Answer: C

Explanation:

I am really not sure why C,, but the below URL may assist:

LegacyExchangeDN / x500 Addresses

Target Audience: Hosted Microsoft Exchange Users
Things you need to know if you are moving from an external

Exchange environment to Rackspace's Hosted Exchange 2007
An Exchange server uses an internal addressing scheme that routes messages between mailboxes it hosts. These addresses are known as LegacyExchangeDN addresses or they are sometimes referred to as x500 addresses. When you send and receive messages on your current providers Exchange service these LegacyExchangeDN addresses are saved with sent and received messages in your inbox. They are also saved within your AutoComplete cache in Outlook. When you reply to or forward existing emails that are migrated over to our system, without first importing the x500 addresses, a bounce will likely be returned if Outlook uses the old x500 address. The bounce will resemble the following non-delivery report:

```
~~~~~
Diagnostic information for administrators:
Generating server: IAD2HUB06.mex02.mlsrvr.com
IMCEAEX-_O=FIRST+20ORGANIZATION_OU=FIRST+20ADMINISTRATIVE
\[email&#160;protected\]
#550 5.1.1 RESOLVER.ADR.ExRecipNotFound; not found ##
```

If you still have access to your old Exchange server, you or your current provider will need to export your LegacyExchangeDN and provide the CSV file to us via a support ticket. We will then get our Exchange engineering specialists to upload the LegacyExchangeDN export into our environment. This will ensure that when you reply to or forward existing messages, even if the x500 is referenced, it will deliver to the corresponding mailbox. For a quick reference the following can be keyed into a Exchange server to retrieve the legacy data:
