NEW QUESTION: 1

During the Design phase of implementing Oracle Product Hub Cloud, you are asked to review the existing processes of Catalog sharing. You decide to add a Category to the Catalog for sharing.

What are the four business benefits of this decision?

- A. The Category hierarchy and any assigned items to the Categories in the shared content can be referenced within the Catalog.
- B. The referenced content can belong to more than one Category.
- C. The Catalog contents can be maintained in a single place.
- D. The complete Category hierarchy in the shared content can be referenced within the Catalog if the items are not assigned to Categories.
- E. The referenced content can belong to only one Category if a Category hierarchy exists.
- F. The Source Catalog content can be shared with multiple Catalogs.

Answer: A,B,C,F

Explanation:

Explanation

Explanation

During the creation of the catalog, sharing can be enabled by specifying a single source catalog that will be used for sharing by reference and setting the value of the sharing content to control what content will be shared from the source catalog. The advantage of using sharing by reference is source catalog content can be shared to multiple catalogs and maintained in a single place, the source catalog. In addition, the referenced content can be more than one category, for example a complete category hierarchy and any assigned items to categories in shared content can also be reference within the catalog.
