NEW QUESTION: 3

You have a computer that runs Windows 7.

You need to prevent users from copying unencrypted files to removable drives.

What should you do?

- A. From Control Panel, modify the BitLocker Drive Encryption settings.
- B. From the Trusted Platform Module (TPM) snap-in, initialize TPM.
- C. From a local Group Policy, modify the Trusted Platform Module (TPM) settings.
- D. From a local Group Policy, modify the BitLocker Drive Encryption settings.

Answer: D

Explanation:

Explanation/Reference:

1018 20196

In Windows 7, you can enable Group Policy settings to require that data drives be BitLocker-protected before a BitLocker-protected computer can write data to them. The policy settings you use for this are:

Computer Configuration\Administrative Templates\Windows Components\BitLocker Drive Encryption \Fixed Data Drives\Deny write access to fixed drives not protected by BitLocker
Computer Configuration\Administrative Templates\Windows Components\BitLocker Drive Encryption \Removable Data Drives\Deny write access to removable drives not protected by BitLocker

When these policy settings are enabled, the BitLocker-protected operating system will mount any data drives that are not protected by BitLocker as read-only.

If you are concerned that your users might inadvertently store data in an unencrypted drives while using a computer that does not have BitLocker enabled, use access control lists (ACLs) and Group Policy to configure access control for the drives or hide the drive letter.
